

NATURAL SELECTION – Botswana

Desert to Delta Experience

Tuludi – Artist rendering of the main area

Join Natural Selection as we head back to the bush following a busy week in the urban jungle.

Arrive in Maun on the 17th May off SA Airlink's flight from Cape Town and be met by Tamryn Russell, your Natural Selection host and fly onto San Camp where we will spend two nights exploring the vast Makgadikgadi Pans. We'll spend time walking with the local Bushmen, visit Chapman's fallen Baobab, maybe catch site of the tail end of the zebra migration and their predators - and if you still have some energy, search for the elusive aardvark after dark. For those who enjoy horses a late afternoon or mornings horseback safari is a must. The next stop is the Khwai Private Reserve for two days of exploring the 200 000 hectare private reserve where we'll enjoy not only game drives, mokoros, boats and even walking safaris. We'll even include a site inspection at our brand new camp, Tuludi that opens in July - keeping in mind it will still be under construction at the time of our visit. Our final stop along our Botswana adventure will see us flying up north to Mapula Lodge in the north of the Okavango, for wild night to round off our desert to delta experience.

Return to Maun the following morning on the 22nd in time for your onward journey.
